Paterson, N. J., April 28. Stimulated by the presence of Elbert H. Gary, Erman J. Ridgeway, "Big Bill" Edwards, Mrs. Courtlandt de Peyster Field. Frank A. Munsey and other notables on the platform, Billy Sunday pulled out the best novelties in his bag of tricks to-night.

The audience was sympathetic. Sun-tricks to-night.

The audience was sympathetic. Sunday "felt good," he said. And so he caverted and leaped and bounded and slammed the Gospel in with a sledge-hammer. He was funny, too. Once he ranged" across the platform, singing "Walking All Over God's Heaven." Once he laid himself flat on his stomach and pushed his mouth into the carpet he was drinking from the boylood spring. Then, again, he imitated a servent working a vacuum cleaner, a servent working a vacuum cleaner.

ach and pushed his mouth into the carpet he was drinking from the boyhood spring. Then, again, he imitated a servant working a vacuum cleaner. Another time he turned to the newspaper men and addressed two of them by name.

Judge Gary gave Sunday a fine start. At the revivalist's suggestion, the steel man stood up in the pulpit and said. "I am certainly willing to occupy a moment of your time to express my cordial approval of Mr. Sunday and his work. I have known him intimately many years, and all I know of him is in his favor. Any one who follows his example or adopts his precepts will make no mistake, will receive no injury, but is certain to be benefited. If I were to give advice to a young man about to start in husiness who wishes to make a success I would tell him to adopt as his foundation stones the principles of Christianity."

Sure of Second Coming.

"After all, the ticker tells the tale," is what Harry Content, stock broker, said he told Mrs. Sarah L. Robertson regarding the possible outcome of her speculations. She knew the market, the broker told her, and her guess was as good as his Content's company is trying to recover $85,500, it is alleged Mrs. Robertson owed the brokers when she closed her account with them.

Content got an opportunity yesterday to tell his side of the concern's dealings with Mrs. Robertson, whose speculations caused a temporary estrangement between her and her husband. Dr. Joseph Archibald Robertson, a well known surgeon, who was opposed to his wife's Wall Street operations, which she carried on with money left her by her first husband, Charles Miller, an Ohio merchant.

Dr. Robertson told of his objections to the speculative career of his wife, who, he said, was one of the heaviest work in the Street. The bloods He Prayed For.

A handsome new set of lights was opened on Market Street to-night, and Sunday made a little speech from the band-stand saying, "Paterson's a silk city, and she's as fine as silk, too."

Montclair, N. J., April 28. Hilly Sunday, who recently prayed for the "bluebloods of Montclair" at one of his Paterson meetings, is going to invade the millionaire district of the town Friday. Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wells, of South Mountain Avenue, to-day issued engraved invitations to about three hundred persons to hear Sunday speak at their home Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Mr. Wells is president of the Babcock & Wilcox Company, of New York, and his home is one of the show places of Montclair. One of his neighbors is Frederick T. Gates, John D. Rockefeller's almoner. Mrs. William, B. Leeds's big Montclair home is just south of the Wells mansion.

Sure of Second Coming.

The sermon was on the "Second Coming of Christ." Sunday says the appearance of Jesus will be as real as twas when He first came on earth.

"Babe will be taken from mother; husband from wife. You'll be sitting with the chauffeur in your Pierce Arrow. The chauffeur will be lifted suddenly to heaven and you'll have to run the car." he yelled.

Sunday referred to the European war.

"I'm not going to butt into God's business." he said. "People ask me to pray for the end of the European war. I'm not going to butt into God's business. How do I know but the Lord is using the Allies to punish Germany for the higher criticism and heresies spread breaderst from Heidelberg and Leinsic?

Are Told at A. B. A. Dinner.

William A. Law, president of the American Bankers' Association, told members and guests of the Forum of the American Institute of Banking, at their second annual dinner at the Hotel Lafayette last night, that the future of banking is safe in the hands of the Reserve Bank Board.

Mayor Gregory' of East Orange, counsel for the New York Credit Men's Association, asserted that the problem of the country is the mutualization of interests between government and the individual. He also took a fling at his own profession, with:

"The least constructive body of men that could be got together would be lawyers. They are so hedged about by red tape, conventionalities and precedents that they will become a detriment instead of an advantage unless they forget the musty contents of many dust covered books."

Mr. Gregory also predicted that after the war New York would become the financial centre of the world, largely because Berlin capital would not go to London.

Other speakers were: O. Howard Wolfe, president of the New York chapter; C. P. Kennedy, vice-president of the Century Bank; Jason A. Neilson, one of the founders of the New York chapter; Dr. Whitehall, Romaine A. Philpot, of Lazard Frères, chairman of the forum committee. Fred W. Ellsworth was toastmaster.

Tenth Street, Philadelphia.
Officials at Police Headquarters believe that they are close upon the trail of the murderer and expect news of his arrest at any time.

"It seems to be only a question of waiting now," Inspector Faurot said last night. "Hanel is a man who knows how to get transportation without cost. We know that he was at one time arrested in New Jersey for riding on freight trains, but we believe ware so close on his trail now that he cannot close us much longer."

The police believe Hanel is hended for Baltimore and will be apprenended in that city or before he reaches it.
Detectives have been dispatched to all parts of Southern Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. Trainmen have

Games; Village Trustees Split

Osborne and Mr. Twigger had a conference yesterday on the subject. The warden said that before he permitted Sunday playing he got the consent of persons living within several hundred yards' radius of the prison. He offered to stop either the cheering incidental to the games or the games themselves if need be. Mr. Twigger will take the matter up with the full board to-morrow.

Some of the trustees are outspoken in asserting that some of the board are playing politics in the interest of a local candidate for Osborne's job.

Omaha, April 28.—A man, who says he is Walter Wheatley, one of the leading tenors of the Century Opera company, is held in Lincoln. The police declare he is George B. Wheatley, jr., of Americus, Ga., who absconded with 3350,000 of the Americus National Bank, of which he was cashier.

Wheatley denies that he was ever in Americus. His case will come up Friday, when witnesses from Americus will arrive to identify him.

The government men assert that he is the missing cashier, but W. A. Hamilton, a Chicago real estate man who came to Lincoln yesterday, could not identify him.

The Americus Wheatley absconded in January last year. Since then the government detectives have been on his trail. The man under arrest says he was singing with the Century Opera Company in New York at the time the Americus banker disappeared.
